

Currently on track to complete MVP on time.

Plan to work on MVP mainly over the weekend--start on Friday.

Successfully hit design doc milestone--design doc was fully flushed out and more pages were written than originally planned.

In creating our data model, we realized that this project is actually more complicated than we thought; however, we worked through the organization and created a structure that the whole team thought was intuitive.

There were more challenges than we thought, but the whole team agreed on every decision that we made.

Design doc took no longer than expected to complete--we worked on our parts separately and then collaborated at the end.