

Regarding previous deadline:

MVP was completed early with very few problems.

Twilio functionality was completed early in the weekend, which meant that we were simply tweaking our project for most of the weekend.

Comfortably fixed bugs and managed to test demo extensively.

Created alternative version of app for demo. This app does not require users to sign up beforehand; however, in the final product, the app will require users to sign up beforehand.

Demo went well; votes were registered on our app and we were able to successfully display the analytics. Usage seemed intuitive.

Regarding next deadline:

Because our initial design doc was quite thorough, not a lot of work must be done to make the final design doc.

All that is left are design challenges: plan to split these up among team members and each address design challenges related to the parts of the project that we worked on.

Expected length of design challenges: 1-2 pages extra.

Plan to work on design doc over the weekend. Currently on track to finish on time.